BURGLARS GET $173 IN RAID

Atavistic Listeners.
Business Is Good.
Wonderful Corn Belt.
Wall Street Forgives.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review.)

MILLIONS eagerly listened Thursday for the big fight's beginning. The listeners included some that would not have waited had they seen Moses coming down from the mountain with his message.

IT IS not fair to condemn intense police fight interest as savagery. It is 80 per cent atavistic. We are separated by only 12,000 years, a moment in the earth's life, from ancestors whose lives depended every day on fighting ability.

Prize fight interest is the survival of a life struggle.

IT MAY interest you to know, in these doldrum dog days of politics and midsummer, that business goes ahead, cheerfully. Many big firms show great gains in "net."

Oil companies are cheerful. If Venezuela can be persuaded to handle her oil wealth serenely all will be serene.

RAILROADS are doing well. The Southern Pacific, excellently managed, made $21,843,134 this year's first six months, $1,857,115 more than last year.

They say—they being the wise ones —that we are to have a savage political campaign. But it is not hurting business.

PROF. SWENEY, of Iowa State college, supplies important information about corn.

The corn belt is the earth's "greatest sponge for absorption and storage of the sun's heat." Heat units are stored in chemical compounds, and could be released. But they go to waste.

HEAT and power wasted in farm products, equivalent to hundreds of millions of tons every year, could be saved. One billion tons of raw stuffs, wasted every year, are equal to twice our tonnage of soft coal.

THE great crowds should live in the corn belt, use the power and food products there, instead of crowding, un-economically, in big cities on the seashore, says the professor.

Already, 30,000 different uses are made of cereal products.

MEN will find a way to take the sun's heat direct, without farming to get it or storing it in vegetable growth.
That will not come immediately. It would make us all too rich and lazy and we'd stop working.

WALL STREET forgets Bryan and forgives the Democratic party. A big Democratic banquet swells in the Wall Street breeze. And W. H. Woodin, president of American Car and Foundry, and American Locomotive, and prominent in other great corporations, comes out for Gov. Smith.

A WISE decision by Postmaster General New reduces air mail charges to five cents for the first ounce. Above that weight the price is 10 cents.

This will stimulate air mail use, and thus promote aircraft building.

Business men should send circulars in air mail envelopes. Every one thus sent will be opened and read. That does not happen to all.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE visiting from fields in northern Minnesota, will see something more important than ten millions, in Minnesota's magnificent public schools.

The open pit iron mines near Hibbing are marvelous proofs of the Creator's generosity. But the open minds of children are ten million times more important, and Minnesota knows it.

WILL peace ladies and gentlemen kindly consider China and Japan?
China's population is more than six times that of Japan; her wealth and the Fokker tri-motored transport plane in which he was returning to Wash-

MAN'S BACK BROKEN IN 40-FOOT FALL

THOMAS KELLY,
27, PAINTER,
BADLY INJURED
IN WELLSVILLE

Worker Plunges From Fultz Building to Sidewalk.

SCAFFOLD SNAPS

Philadelphian Reported in Critical Condition at Hospital.

Thomas Kelly, 27, Philadelphia, is believed to have been fatally injured when he fell from a scaffold while at work near the top of the three-story Fultz building, Eighteenth and Main streets, Wellsville, at 9:30 o'clock this morning.

Suffering from a broken back and pelvis bone and possible internal injuries, Kelly was brought to the City hospital in the D. N. MacLean ambulance.

Kelly and another painter were standing on a scaffold painting the front of the building, when the former lost his balance and fell 40 feet to the sidewalk. His co-worker went to his assistance and found Kelly paralyzed.

An X-ray examination at the hospital showed Kelly's back had been broken near the end of the spine. His condition at 1 o'clock this afternoon was critical.

TWO RESCUED AS PLANE PLUNGES

Miss Clementine Blythe, 21, 132
Ohio street, Salem, and Clifford Shirley, airplane pilot, narrowly escaped drowning yesterday when the seaplane in which they were riding overturned in Lake Milton, west of Youngstown.

Shirley's presence of mind in un-buckling the safety belt worn by Miss Blythe is believed to have saved the girl's life. The seaplane had just made a landing in the lake when it was caught by a wind squall and thrown into the water.

Shirley and Miss Blythe hung to the top of the pontoons until they were rescued by a speed boat which was rushed from Craig Beach, about a half mile away. One wing was torn from the seaplane and the motor was damaged by water. The craft was owned by W. Edgar Leedy, Jr.

SALEM ROBBERY SUSPECT ESCAPES

A youth suspected of having robbed a lunch counter eluded Patrolman Ralph Stoffer of Salem yesterday after a six-mile chase in which the officer emptied his revolver at Stoffer arrested the youth and ordered him to drive to the city jail ahead of his motorcycle. When they nearly reached the city building, the prisoner
"stepped on the gas" and led his captor into the rural district.

Other policemen went to Stoffer's aid, bringing riot guns with them, but an hour's search of the district was unsuccessful.

"GET 'EM" QUILTS

"Big Bill" Thompson's regime in Chicago has been further complicated by the sudden resignation of "Go Get 'Em" Hughes, the rough and ready chief of police who accompanied him into office. Hughes' failure to run down the gangsters who killed Assistant State's Attorney William H. Mc-Swiggen caused the convening of a special crime grand jury in Chicago.

Hoover Begins His 4-Day Fishing Trip

Republican Nominee Will Vie With 35 Personal Friends, Newspaper Men and Photographers in Angling for Trout in Klamath River.

By William K. Hutchinson.

PALO ALTO, Cal., July 28.—Taking his first vacation since he became the Republican nominee for president, Herbert Hoover will leave here today on a four-day fishing trip and sight-seeing tour of northern California's natural wonders.

Hoover, an honorary vice president of the Izaak Walton league, was to vis with a group of 35 personal friends, newspaper men and photographers in angling for trout in the headwaters of the Klamath river, near the Oregon state line. He will make the trip north by motor, carrying his party through the giant redwood forests and skirting the Pacific ocean to the Oregon line.
After a brief dip into Oregon to cross the Siskiyou mountains, he will turn back into California for his fishing. The return trip will be made by special train over the Southern Pacific line.

The nominee expected to be home by next Wednesday for a ten day rest before making his speech of acceptance August 11. A few days after that, he will board his special train again, spend two days in Los Angeles and then turn eastward. His present intention is to pay a fleeting visit to the Grand Canyon of Colorado, stop three days in Iowa and be back in Washington by August 27th. His campaign after that will include frequent trips to the largest cities of the east and middle west for interpretive speeches once the campaign gets under way.

The nominee, as a fisherman, asks favors from no man and he personally arranged the itinerary which will send him on his way. He also planned the details, which call for sleeping in log cabins, if not a truly outfit on the cold ground, once the party reaches his fishing camp high in the Siskiyou range.

NOVELTY STORE IN DIAMOND LOOTED; DOOR LOCK PICKED

Fourth Robbery in Business Zone in Two Days.

CHANGE LEFT
Intruders Escape With Currency Found in Register.

Burglars forced an entrance into the Diamond variety store in the Ingram building in the heart of the business district last night and made a getaway with $173 taken from the cash register.

Six checks, totaling $53.50 and a small amount in nickels and other change, also in the register, were not taken, according to L. J. Lavin, proprietor, in his report to the police.

Entrance to the store, police believe, was made with the use of a skeleton key in the lock of the front door. A back door from the Diamond alley was fastened with a heavy iron bar. This bar, police said, had been raised this morning, indicating that the burglars had left from the rear.

The front door was locked when Lavin opened the store. No merchandise was taken so far as could be determined. The money represents receipts of the store for the day which are usually kept in the cash register until the bank opens on the following morning.

Chief of Police McDermott and Patrolman William Lister investigated the robbery.

Four downtown stores, have been looted during the last two nights, the

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, July 28.—Bullish operations, although not as aggressive as the previous session, continued to manifest themselves in the stock market today. The mail order and chain store stocks led the forward movement, Montgomery Ward closing 6 3/4 higher at 177 3/4, a new high record price. Sears Roebuck, closing at 118 1/4, up 1 1/8, was fairly strong throughout the day.

There was some profit taking at times, particularly early in the day when some stocks eased off. But, in the final hour, the general list strengthened and the market closed steady—a few issues fractionally easier but the rank and file showing gains.

United States Steel, which scored a substantial gain yesterday and which has been a leader all week, closed 1/4 lower at 144 1/4. General Motors, another strong stock this week, closed at 193 1/4, a gain of one point for the day. Other closing prices were: American Can 90 7/8, off 3/8; American Smelting 263 1/4, down 1/2; General Electric 150 5/8, up 1/8; Chrysler 77 1/4, off 2 1/8; Hudson Motor 85, up 4 points; Packard 74 1/4, up 1/4; Sinclair 25 1/4, up 1/4; Cudahy Packing 73, up 3 1/2; Erie 53 1/8, off 3/8; Union Pacific 194 3/4, up 7/8 and St. Paul 36 1/8, up 1/8.

The decline in Chrysler was attributed by some traders to the delay in effecting the Chrysler-Dodge merger.

Byrd Tells Who Is Fitted For Hardships in the Arctic

Says Dreamer-Fighter Is Best Combination for Exploration

By GRAHAM STEWART
International Illustrated News Staff Writer

THE drama that is being unfolded for newspaper readers in grim Northeastland prompts the question: Just what type of rugged manhood is best suited to withstand the hardships of Arctic exploration?

Impetuous youth or wiry, experienced age? The brilliant bookworm, gifted also with good muscles? What about the married man? The smoker? How far does family history count?

Commander Richard E. Byrd, in his recently published book, Skyward, answers these queries in interesting fashion.

"I am inclined," he writes, "to put age as the first limiting factor. Youth will be served. The young man has zest and ambition. He has an internal machinery not long out of the factory, longs instinctively for combat with man or nature—and he cares little which."

"Briefly, I should say that the average man does not get his full strength until after twenty and reaches his peak around twenty-five. He is close to the downhill slide—physically—before he is thirty-eight. The ages between twenty and thirty, therefore, would seem best fitted to endure privation and hardship and look unconcernedly upon the bright face of danger."

"I am frequently asked if the phlegmatic man isn't better fitted temperamentally to undergo hardships than his more imaginative brother. I don't believe he is. If a man lacks imagination he is inclined to let things slide."

"Amundsen, Peary, Scott and Shackleton were men of laconic, grim personalities, yet their writings, their friends, their works all testify to the heights of fancy their ardor could carry them to on occasion. It was their combination of dreamer and fighter that largely set them apart from their fellows."

Commander Byrd says that a year of isolation and hardship in the Arctic does things to men that are never dreamed of in ordinary life. He adds that few leaders but know of dozens of cases in which a fine athlete at home became a menace in the field. For instance:

The man who turns up with a weak digestion or lungs; the man who goes "native"—wants to eat, live and dress with native negligence; the man who becomes hysterical in a tight place and wants to fight; the man who is a secret drinker; the man who blows up when his tobacco is gone; the victim of homesickness; and, finally, the man who, when he is tired, can't stand the other fellow's banjo—or his singing.

The explorer extolls the late Floyd Bennett as his ideal of a comrade in a pinch, for Bennett's calm nerve never once deserted him in their sojourns in the Arctic.

Another Packet Race

The East Liverpool district wins a place in the picture of the revival of Ohio river packet racing, as a result of the challenge issued by the Senator Cordill to the Chris Greene, which now proudly displays the gold leaf antlers of the Betsy Ann by reason of the recent victory in the 25-mile dash from Cincinnati to New Richmond.

Captain Mel Irwin, master of the Senator Cordill, who suggested a prize of $500 in the event arrangements can be made for a test of speed against the new queen of the Ohio, formerly lived in Calcutta, north of East Liverpool, where his father, for many years, operated a hotel.

Irwin, who recalls the romantic days of steamboat racing on the Ohio and Mississippi, will be in the pilot house of the Cordill if the owner of the steel-hulled Chris Greene accepts his def. And he will do his part in making the sport of the early days of Mark Twain as exciting as it was when hoop skirts were the vogue.

If the masters of the stern-wheelers come to terms, and it is not probable that the Chris Greene will rest on its laurels, will not select a river course somewhere in the upper stretches of the Ohio? There should be as much thrill in steamboating for the East Liverpool district as for those who lined the banks of the Ohio river between Cincinnati and New Richmond when the old and new in river craft splashed and dashed.

Outlawing War

Certain of the irreconcilables among statesmen of the United States, coupled with that section of the American press frequently referred to as die-hards, have been endeavoring to belittle the achievement of Secretary Kellogg and President Coolidge in pushing to a happy termination the Kellogg plan to outlaw war.

The cry has been raised that if the world ratifies the Kellogg plan it will be a compromising situation in which the United States finds itself—that all such agreements and treaties ultimately lead to the League of Nations, in which the United States has declined to participate.

Secretary Kellogg says the pact to outlaw war leaves America free, that no concessions have been made and that relations with foreign governments are to continue without change. Thus Mr. Kellogg brushes aside shadows of foreign entanglements which the irreconcilable group sought to throw athwart the path of the pact to outlaw war.

Already fourteen nations have agreed to sign the Kellogg pact. And the unanimity of opinion apparent from the fact that all have agreed to add in the outlawry of war bespeaks a desire to see, as near as human agency is capable of doing, that the spectacle of another conflict between nations does not spread itself abroad.

Tide of Golden Wheat

Again rises the tide of golden wheat. Across the prairies of the mid-west men and machines are chanting their annual odyssey. From the prairies of Manitoba to the plains of Texas an illimitable inland sea of wheat is ripening in the summer sun. Flowing in endless leagues across the borders of many states, it shades from deep green in the north to bright yellow in the fields of the south. There the harvest already has begun. And in the coming weeks it will be sweeping northward with the golden tide, garnering the grain that makes the bread of half the world.

There are new flagships in that immemorial movement every year, as greater and more elaborate machines are invented to do the work that Chaldean harvesters did by hand. What the oil burners have done to sailors of the sea the combine that takes the place of a score of men is doing to the harvesters of the prairies. But harvesting, in its broad sweep northward, still is far from mechanized. The man in overalls still plays a leading role.

And the tatterdemalion crews of harvest hands still appear in season to do their few weeks of strenuous work as they roam northward from farm to farm. They come from all points of the compass.

Ohio has, of course, countless thousands of acres of wheat every year, and threshing time in the Buckeye state is a time for ceaseless energy, daylight to dark working hours—yet harvest in Ohio is not the tremendous thing it is in the prairie states, where a wheat farm owned by one person may comprise as much land as there is in Columbiana, Mahoning and Stark counties, combined.

The wheat belt in the central west is something amazing in its proportions. It starts in Texas, and it continues in an unbroken strip through Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and into western Canada. It takes in much of Montana, Minnesota, Missouri, New Mexico, Colorado and Utah. In area, it is a vast empire in itself. In potential value of the garnered grain, it is priceless.

Harvest hands are fewer in number today than a few years back due to the coming of the combine, but there still is a sizable army of harvesters each year in the wheat belt. They are sturdy folks, some old, some young. And they do not balk at long hours.

Secretary West

There is general approval of Mr. Coolidge's appointment of Roy O. West to succeed Hubert Work as secretary of the interior, a portfolio which Dr. Work relinquished to become chairman of the Republican national committee and manager of Herbert Hoover's campaign.

A native of the central west, a graduate of DePauw university, Indiana, Mr. West has been a successful attorney for many years. He has long been one of the wheel horses of the Republican party. He exercises a large and vigorous interest in educational problems. By temperament, experience, and interest, he is admirably qualified for the post to which he has just been assigned.

The Tunney-Henney flight was a double knockout, with the New Zealand blacksmith and Tex Rickard, the promoter, taking the count.

Drive cautiously over the weekend.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—The belief of some people that the army is a burden to be endured in peace for the sake of protection in time of strife belongs to the era when a riot of rum was part of a soldier's ration. That the military forces of today play a part in civil life is proved by the 55,000 applications of civilians for enrollment in the Citizens' Military Training camps and the quarter of a million men who take some sort of military training in the summer. The type of instruction given at the various summer camps is also a revelation to those who harbor old and hackneyed prejudices.

Moreover, the fact that more than 200,000 men will have been in some kind of military camp receiving instruction from nearly 3500 officers and requiring instruction units composed of about 48,000 enlisted men does not mean that the United States has gone military. Stepping off the sidewalk when army officers pass has not been and will not be an American vogue.

There are many reasons that boys just out of high school, young men, and even well-established business men go to summer military camps. For some there is the opportunity to share the glamour of the soldier's life. Many young men think it a chance to have a cheap vacation at government expense, since food, clothes, and travel to and from the camps are furnished. The more serious-minded realize that such an experience will be good for them physically, and the most serious think it a privilege and duty to take this part in government affairs.

What do the men of America get at camp? Exercise of mind as well as of body. However, the benefits of the latter are not to be belittled. Removing excess pounds and substituting muscle is well worth while.

Military tactics are only one part of the program which also contains athletics and a course in citizenship. There is a physical regime which includes training both for the mass and the individual.

Athletic competitions, swimming, boxing, setting up exercises, and hiking are a part of it. The classes in citizenship, designed for the foreign-born, are excellent for young Americans, and for old, too, who have only a sketchy idea of their government. They are conducted informally in order to draw all into the discussions thereby promoting brain exercise. Having everyone agree to certain fine principles is not their purpose, but rather to have everyone stirred up to think a thought and have an idea.

There are four different classes of civilian training groups. The Citizens' Military Training camps, known more briefly as the C. M. T. C., are coming more and more to be comprised of young men, even those of high school age. Since the appropriation for these camps permitted the attendance of only 35,000 and there were between 50,000 and 60,000 applications, it was necessary for admission to be limited to those of higher qualifications as shown in the written forms submitted. A physical examination was required.

The camps are located in various sections of the United States, and one is established at San Juan, Porto Rico. The largest enrollment is that of Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, with 1559. Camp Knox, Kentucky, Plattsburg Barracks, New York, Jefferson Barracks, Missouri, and Fort Eustis, Virginia, approximate that number of students.

In all, fifty-one camps are opened to the student soldiers this summer. They are made possible by the cooperation of the regular army which acts as a nucleus and furnishes instruction. Almost all its units contribute their services. Those who take part are infantry, including tank units, cavalry, field and coast artillery, air corps, engineers, signal corps, ordnance and finance departments, chemical warfare service, medical and quartermaster corps.

Reserve officers' training corps, recruited from the colleges and universities of the country, provides another class of military summer school students. These young men study the theory of such training while they are pursuing their academic work and get the practical application in the camps. Upon completion of their courses they are eligible to commissions in the reserves. Some 8000 will be in camp this summer.

NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, July 28.—Along Broadway they are known as "take joints." They are fly-by-night cafes whose prosperity depends entirely upon the sap. They take him as Grant took Richmond, and if he squawks out he skids on his ear.

The especially desired location is a place from which some reputable cafe or night club has moved. The kyp parlor entrepreneur keeps its exterior the same and sometimes will, save for the change of a single letter, have the same name.

Many whose proprietors have gone out of business or moved, now flourish. The enterprise is not built on the idea of return patronage. A customer rarely goes back unless he is a glutton for punishment. They are the sort inspiring Bugs Baer's rick: "Walter, bring my check and a fright wig."

Some lodge next door to first class haunts and so stimulate their neighbors' outside decorations that many enter unsuspectingly and are not conscious of their mistake until the garcon hands them the awful news. Aside from overcharge, the addition is done with a split lead pencil.

In most of them are a brace of beetle browsed bullies who act as bouncers and intimidate those who neckily inquire about the accuracy of a $2 charge for a razor-thin sandwich. As a general thing people submit to the robbery rather than face a row.

Such frenetic joints, too, are the rendezvous for hardboiled ladies of the night who carry suspicious vials in handbags and have convenient apartments in the neighborhood. Nor is the ancient badger game an entirely lost gesture in the Tenderloin "take joints."

It has been estimated there are more than 200 sucker saloons of this sort between the Circle and Herald Square. They are hept to New York's responsive appeal to a "front," and their carriage starters and outside

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth A Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

When your digestion begins to "go back" on you and your food feels like a stone in your stomach you should find out what is wrong. It is likely the cause is trifling and can be removed without difficulty. But if you neglect the condition you may wake up some day to find out you are in serious trouble.

To be hungry is natural and desirable. But after eating heartily, to have gnawing or aching pains in the stomach within an hour or two, or to have such pains an hour or two before meal-time, is a bad sign.

Nausea in the morning, after eating, or, for that matter, at any time of day, is a symptom which should not be disregarded. Belching of gas, gulping up of food, and vomiting, give evidence of a disability worthy of your attention.

Indigestion and all the symptoms I have suggested are ground under the common title "dyspepsia." This is a term which means little more now than to indicate a lot of symptoms relating to the stomach. It was formerly used as the name of a disease. Today, doctors recognize that these common symptoms may be sifted and with the aid of the X-ray and various laboratory tests, the exact disturbance may be located and defined.

Ulcer of the stomach causes pain, nausea, vomiting and the familiar chain of dyspepsia symptoms. Disease of the kidneys may have these symptoms. Cancer of the stomach is another of the serious diseases which may upset digestion and produce pronounced symptoms of dyspepsia.

These three conditions—ulcer, Bright's disease and cancer—are capable of discovery by the careful tests I have suggested. It is early recognition and early treatment that will make it possible to apply satisfactory methods of treatment.

There is another form of dyspepsia which is due to anemia, overwork, habitual loss of sleep, or nervous exhaustion. This type is usually called "nervous dyspepsia," because it seems to be the effect of a failure of function in the nerve supply of the stomach, its muscular walls and lining membrane.

It is useless to attempt a cure of nervous dyspepsia by taking soda tablets or other drugs intended to neutralize the excessive acidity of the stomach contents. Such treatment will give temporary relief but of course, the underlying trouble cannot

Before going to your doctor to worry him with your troubles, give yourself and your habits a careful survey. Once Overs

Don't Ruin a Business Man's Day.
Are you offended when you are given little more than a hasty greeting, calling at the office of a friend?

You feel he should give you a little time, show greater evidence of pleasure because of your visit.

Somewhat you cannot convince yourself that the feeling of friendship, of which he once gave evidence, has not cooled off a bit.

Well, maybe it has. But more likely he has certain work to get out before the close of the day, work that might keep others over time if he does not attend to it.

If you have the right slant on your own work, you ought to realize that a man in a responsible position has about all he can do during working hours.

No allowance is made for visiting. If it is done, it means faster work later, or killing the day's schedule.

The small town person has usually the least regard for and appreciation of a busy man's position. He cannot understand why a few moments of time should interfere appreciably with a day's schedule.

His working hours are less crowded than those of the busy city man.

Britain's Childless Town.

In the Huntingdonshire district of England is the village of Caldecot, a delight to the eye of the tourist and a paradise for dreamers. Blossom-bedecked foliage lines the lanes that approach it. Its quaint streets are shaded by giant trees that interlace high in the air. The houses are old-world. The village green is a stretch of carefully kept sward, brilliant with flowers and inviting the weary to rest on its shaded benches.

Yet there is something strange about Caldecot that is at first puzzling and then startling to the stranger. For nowhere, upon the green or in the lanes, is the voice of a child heard. Never is the silence that broods over the place broken by happy laughter or the patter of little feet. There have been no children in Caldecot for ten years. It is a village of old men and women, completely deserted by the younger generation.

It is difficult to imagine a community without children. Their presence lends an atmosphere of life, a progression of the scheme of things, a flowing onward and onward of the stream of existence. In Caldecot, the stream seems dammed and stagnant, doomed to dry up and vanish. In a few years, there will be no Caldecot. A sad village, surely.—Columbus Dispatch.

DOG MOTHERS HELPLESS FAWN

NORTH COLEBROOK, Conn.—

Palva, husky German police dog, adopted a two-weeks old fawn this summer and when the fawn had the misfortune to break a leg, the dog nursed it and watched over it until the injury healed. The dog belongs to Frank S. Humphrey, a local farmer, and dog and fawn formed the central point of interest for motorists who flocked from far points to gaze at the two lying on the lawn, or romping together in the Humphrey dooryard.

Humphrey found the fawn in a haylot, helpless because of its age. He carried the animal home and fed it from a nursing bottle. The dog watched with interest and guarded the animal. Only the dog knows how the broken leg occurred, and all he could do was summon his master. Humphrey sent to Winston for Dr. C. A. Burnette, who came out and set the fawn's leg.

A similar change is being made on the Sound shore from New London to the Rhode Island state line where the Stonington and Groton Tramway Co. will put busses to work in place of cars. A branch line of the Connecticut, Co. in New London also is being wiped out.

Performance that reaches thrilling new limits!
Smoothness that sets a new mark in motordom!
Gas efficiency that alters all previous standards!

Even you, who own and admire Hudson Super-Sixes of previous issue, can have no conception of the superlative finesse and quality expressed, both mechanically and in body beauty, of the great Hudsons of today.

The almost universal trend to the high-compression motor only serves to emphasize the exclusive method, advantages and results achieved by the Hudson Super-Six in this development.

While conventional types depend upon special, costlier fuels to minimize roughness, the Hudson design uses any gasoline, delivering the extra power with the elastic smoothness and torque of a steam engine.

Combined with the Super-Six principle this new invention makes Hudson the most powerful and economical car per pound weight in the world.

The extraordinary speed of Hudson get-away is but a single expression of the brilliant activity of the New Hudson Super-Six, which is carried on to every phase of performance. You see it in the rapidity with which it rolls into high speed; the effortless ease with which it sustains fast going; the long, reliable service through which it maintains its smooth and brilliant performance.

A single ride will explain why this has been the most enthusiastically accepted Hudson ever built.

Inherits $4,000,000, But He'll Stay on the Job

"Bill" Plankinton Wants To Win Success On His Own

By GRAHAM STEWART
International Illustrated News Staff Writer

NEW YORK.—The boyish chap whose picture appears in the adjoining column is UNIQUE among modern youths. He is the heir to $4,000,000 of the $10,000,000 estate left by his father, the late William Woods Plankinton, Sr., yet he chooses to WORK for his living. True, he quit his $30-a-week job upon learning of the bequest, but it was not preliminary to embarking upon a career of dissipation and high-powered spending. It was so he could make a connection with some newly-organized construction firm where he will have an opportunity to climb up in the world.

For "Bill" Plankinton still has visions of making a fortune in his own name despite the burden of wealth suddenly placed upon his shoulders. In this manner he shyly confided that he expected to get the most "kick" out of life.

"All I'll be at first," he said, his grayish-blue eyes fixed on the skeleton of a tall office building in the Mid-Forties, "is a general 'flunky.' But some day I hope to invest in the company."

The young millionaire explained that he preferred to associate himself with a new company run by young men because old-established firms are prone to conservatism in the matter of boosting their employees. They aren't suited for the young man with ideas of his own,

"BILL" PLANKINTON

for it's too easy to get into an argument.

The boy, who is "Bill" to his friends despite his wealth, hasn't even thought of marriage yet, declaring he is too young and that he wants to "get started" in business before choosing a wife. But he quickly added that he isn't indifferent to a pretty girl; that, in his own good time, he intends to "get around" to the matter.

"But," he said, "when romance does enter my life, I want it to be a lifetime affair."

TYDINGS LINES UP 400 DEM DRIVE VOICES

Maryland Senator Prepares for Big Shout.

WILL USE RADIO

Fifty "Leatherlungs" to Operate as "Big Berthas."

NEW YORK, July 24.—Senator Mildred E. Tydings, of Maryland, chairman of the Democratic speakers' bureau, established himself in national headquarters here today to tune up the voice of Democracy for the big shout in the campaign.

He found on his desk ample evidence of a great voice—hundreds of letters from party leaders and lieutenants in all parts of the country seeking assignments. His job will be to coordinate the din of Babel into a vigorous and smooth, silver-tongued battle cry for Smith and Robinson.

Although the radio will be used more extensively in this campaign than in any previous national effort, Tydings still has a job of bewildering magnitude. Hired and volunteer speakers in the national campaign will number close to 400. Some will speak almost daily, on itineraries as carefully prepared as those of a silk stocking salesman, and approximately 50 of the higher-powered voices will operate on the "Big Bertha" basis—a terrific blast when the enemy is at the gates.

Cost Will Be $600,000. Tydings' operations will be one of the principal elements of the campaign and will cost about one-fifth of the $3,000,000 national budget.

Coinciding with the opening of the speakers' bureau, came formation of plans for the national campaign in Maryland, Tydings' home state. Following a conference here with Governor Albert C. Ritchie yesterday, at which the major aspects of the free state program were discussed, Tydings was ready today to present his detailed campaign plans for Maryland to the national executive committee. Owing to the absence of Chairman John J. Raskob, who is spending the weekend at his summer estate in Maryland, formal approval is not expected before Monday, but Governor Ritchie, who discussed the campaign with Governor Alfred E. Smith last night, is satisfied that the Tydings' plan will be sanctioned by the strategy board.

Ritchie Directs State Fight. Both of Maryland's senators, and five of her six members of the house are Democrats. The state is now under a Democratic administration. Aided by a vigorously won campaign in Baltimore, which casts about half the popular vote of Maryland, the Democrats look forward to the brightest prospects in that state they have enjoyed in years.

Their great task is to overcome a traditional Republican majority in presidential years. President Coolidge carried the state by 15,000 four years ago, and Harding won it from Cox in 1920 by 56,000. Save for the two Wilson victories there in 1912 and 1916, Maryland has voted Republican majorities for president every year since 1892. In that year Cleveland won the state by 22,000.

Governor Ritchie will have supervision of the Maryland national campaign, under the national advisory committee here.

List 64 Candidates

and Peter Witt, Cleveland, former member of the Cleveland city council and a strong Smith supporter. Congressman Davey is conceded to have nomination clinched by political observers in Columbus, and that his victory will be a one-sided one. In the background are James C. B. Beatty, East Liverpool; Earl D. Bloom, Bowling Green, former lieutenant governor; and Herman R. Witter, Canton, chief of the division of public works.

Gubernatorial Fight. On the Republican side of the fence, three of the six candidates, are wrangling over public utilities, prohibition and campaign expenses. They are Edward C. Turner, Columbus, present attorney general; Congressman James T. Begg, Sandusky, and Myers V. Cooper, Cincinnati, real estate broker and Sunday school worker, Republican candidate against Gov. Donahoe two years ago. Other Republican candidates for the governorship are Harry C. Smith, Cleveland, editor of a Cleveland Negro newspaper; Harry A. Shanley, Forest, and Fred Kohler, Cleveland, former mayor of Cleveland and former sheriff of Cuyahoga county.

Among the candidates for the senatorial toga, there is more of a fight between the Democrats. Senator Foss is opposed for the full term on the Republican ticket, while Charles V. Trax, Bucyrus, director of the state department of agriculture and George White, Marietta, former Democratic national committeeman, are the outstanding Democrats for the nomination. Their opponents are Thomas S. Wright, Lancaster; Charles E. Wharton, Kenton; and Frank F. Gentsch, Cleveland.

For the unexpired term of the late Senator Frank B. Willis, Cyrus Locher, Cleveland, now serving under appointment by Gov. Donahoe, and Graham P. Hunt, Cincinnati, are fighting it out on the Democratic side, while five Republicans desire the same nomination. Congressman Theodore E. Burton, Cleveland; Carington T. Marshall, Zanesville, chief justice Ohio supreme court; Charles Dick, Akron, former U. S. senator; H. D. Cook, Ashabula; and Jacob S. Coxey, Sr., Massillon, of "Coxey's army" fame, are those in the race for the favor of Republicans.

Braden Seeks Both Terms. George C. Braden, Warren, (R.), is the only man on either ticket seeking both the full and unexpired term for an office. He is a candidate for nomination to both the full and unexpired term of lieutenant governor. For the full term he is opposed by John T. Brown, Mechanicsburg; Albert E. Midthorn, Fremont; Roland G. Davis, Middletown; Edgar Ervin, Columbus; Allen G. McDonald, Dayton, present mayor of the Gem City; William E. McKinley, East Liverpool, attorney; Alex M. Moore, Athens, and Charles L. Young, Rock Creek. For the unexpired term the candidates, besides Braden, are Jacob Willner Epstein, Toledo, and Edwin Reed, Radnor.

Democrats are entered for the full term nomination only. They are: George S. Myers, Cleveland, and William G. Pickrel, Dayton, the present holder of the office, appointed by Gov. Donahoe. While but two Republicans are entered for auditor of state, seven are seeking the office among Democrats. State Auditor Joseph Tracy, Portsmouth, is opposed for the nomination by Stanley Cherrington, Columbus. Democrats in the field are Daniel E. Butler, Toledo; Alva L. Coddington, Cleveland; Joseph T. Ferguson, Manchester; Charles H. Hibbell, Cleveland; J. H. Kauffman, Columbus; Aaron Moul, Columbus, and Lester Riddle, Delaware.

Judicial Contest. But two candidates are listed for judge of the supreme court, an either party ticket, with two to be nominated. The Democrats are: Dennis E. Dunlavy, Ashabula, and Frank E. Monnett, Columbus, former attorney general during the McKinley administration, and the Republicans, Robert H. Day, Massillon; and Frank W. Geiger, Springfield.

Six Republicans are seeking the office of attorney general. They are: Matthew L. Bigger, Columbus; Gilbert Bettman, Cincinnati; Clinton D. Boyd, Middletown; John W. Bicker, Columbus; J. Eugene Roberts, Youngstown, member of the state senate, and John H. Price, Cleveland, former attorney general.

Two Democrats are running for each of the two remaining state offices—secretary of state, sought by John Henry Newman, Columbus, and Carl W. Smith, Kenton, and treasurer of state, Fred M. Bushwell, Mansfield, and James Patrick Managan, Cleveland.

Police to Place "Stop" and "Slow" Signs in Northside and Downtown Streets.

Four "turtle-back" traffic standards are to be installed in East Liverpool within the next few days, Chief of Police McDermott announced today.

One of these standards, bearing the word "Slow" will be placed in East Fifth street, near the Sugar street intersection. Another "Stop" sign will be located in Park boulevard at St. Clair avenue. Third will be placed at Jackson and West Fifth streets. Location of the fourth sign has not been determined.

The "turtle-backs" have reflectors which attract the attention of the automobile driver.

FOUR LADS DIE IN BOAT CRASH

Liner Rams Lake Cruising Craft in Michigan.

HOLLAND, Mich., July 24.—Search by police, firemen and volunteers continued today for the bodies of four youths, all of prominent families, who were drowned when their speed boat crashed into the "City of Holland," Chicago excursion liner at Gold's Point, a resort, near here, late last night.

Two other youths, also members of the cruising party who were rescued by fishermen were still in a critical condition from injuries sustained and were not able to give any information regarding the crash.

According to fishermen who witnessed the collision, the youths were cruising about when suddenly the cruiser took on speed and crashed into the steamer.

The drowned youths are: John Arons, 22, of Holland, Mich.; Paul Landwehr, 18, son of A. H. Landwehr, millionaire president of the Holland Furnace company of Holland, Mich.; John Nystrom, 19, cousin of young Landwehr and Earl Van Lente, 18, also of Holland.

The rescued youths are: George Lyle of Los Angeles and Robert Medrano, an Argentinian living in New York.

RENEW SEARCH FOR AMUNDSEN

Norway Offers Bounty of $1,900 to Spur Sealers.

LONDON, July 23.—Still confident that Capt. Roald Amundsen, noted Arctic explorer, will be found alive, the Norwegian government today took steps to insure a continued search for him.

Premier Nowinkel offered a bounty of about $1,900 to sealers frequenting the seas between Norway and Spitzbergen to spur them in their search, according to a dispatch from Oslo.

Amundsen has not been heard from since leaving Tromsø, Norway, on June 18 with five companions in a French airplane to search for survivors of the Italia tragedy.

General Umberto Nobile, commander of the ill-fated polar expedition, and six other survivors are now being taken through Sweden in a special train. There have been no demonstrations at any of the stations where the train stopped.

Captain Albert Mariano, the eighth survivor, whose right foot was frost-bitten and then amputated, remained behind.

GLASS BLOWERS GET OLD SCALE

Workers and Employers Reach Agreement in Conference.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 23.—Wages in the glass blowing industry will remain at their present scale for the year beginning September 1, with one possible exception, it was decided here at the concluding session of the annual conference between the American Flint Glassworkers' union and the National Association of Manufacturers of pressed and blown glassware.

At the outset, the workmen asked increases of from 10 to 25 per cent, while the manufacturers wanted wage cuts as high as 20 per cent. Both receded from these demands. The one exception is in the chimney department, where the manufacturers are sticking to their request for a 20 per cent cut in wages, due to the dwindling use of glass lamp chimneys. The question has been submitted to the workmen for a vote.

BANDITS FLEE AFTER HOLDUP AND SHOOTING

Wound Steubenville Man as Robbery Plan Fails.

ESCAPE IN AUTO

Youthful Gunmen Head Toward Ceramic City.

Two young bandits, who made an unsuccessful attempt to carry off a $4,000 payroll from the offices of the Liberty Paper Board company, Steubenville, late yesterday afternoon, after wounding Andrew Vineberg, a watchman, are believed to have fled toward East Liverpool. They escaped in an automobile.

Vineberg was at the head of the plant workmen lined up in front of the pay office waiting to get their weekly checks cashed when the holdup men's automobile drove up. Two leaped out, one wearing a handkerchief over his face. This man, gun in hand, advanced to the pay window. As he reached it, he suddenly poked the gun against Vineberg's back and yelled "Hands up!" Before Vineberg could respond he was shot.

After he dropped, the bandit and his companion hesitated, then leaping back into the automobile, drove rapidly away. Police believe the fugitives were inexperienced.

H. L. Williams, paymaster, told police that there were three bandits, one remaining in the car. He said after Vineberg had been shot, the gunmen yelled "Give me the money." Williams snapped the pay window shut and ducked. The bandits then fled. Vineberg's condition is serious because of his advanced age.

Feed Mash All Summer If You Want Real Pullets Next Fall

After 6 weeks change your birds from starting mash to Conkey's Gecco Growing Mash and Conkey's Growing Grains. Make the change gradually, taking about 10 days, then keep both mash and scratch in hoppers before the birds all the time until they are two-thirds grown; then substitute Conkey's Scratch Grains for the Growing Grains, but do not change the Gecco Growing Mash until the pullets are ready to lay.

You cannot go wrong on this method of feeding your growing stock. It is the most economical and practical way and will develop them more rapidly than any other. Try it and see for yourself.

NO ARMY MULES TO BE CUSSSED AT FORT WOOD

Mechanized Force of 1,400 Men at Baltimore.

PLAN MANEUVERS

Six-wheel Truck With Four-wheel Drive Predicted.

BALTIMORE.—Fort Leonard Wood will go down in army history.

It is the first camp Uncle Sam has maintained without army mules and the accompanying "mule skinner." The absence of the latter will greatly reduce the profanity rate, the officers say.

The new camp near here is that of the recently established mechanized force with a permanent strength of 1,300 men. This number has been increased by 1,100 troops which have been concentrated here from various camps in the country.

The soldiers, representing virtually every branch of service, will take part in the maneuvers. The mechanized force will stage during the next two months with their mechanical equipment.

Replaced by Trucks.
A new six-wheel truck, with a four wheel drive, is predicted to supplant the long-eared animal which has been the mascot of the army since it was organized.

Experiments already made with this type truck have slated the mules for the retired list. For instance, the truck went up a sandy slope of thirty five degrees with comparative ease and without the cursing of "mule skinner."

One veteran officer, whose eyes have inspected many a stable of mules, remarked that a team of mules could drag a burden up a similar incline if their drivers cursed sufficiently. "Usually they climb the grade when their drivers want them to do the opposite," he said smiling.

An interesting sight at the camp is a group of old French and British war time tanks. The discard of the mule is still somewhat doubtful but with the tank "veterans," their doom has been decreed.

During the maneuvers these "old timers" of the battlefronts will be started down hill and dale under their own power and driverless. Then they will be shelled to destruction by their more powerful successors.

The new M-1 tank, the latest development of its class, is expected to have little difficulty in putting the war-scarred tanks out of commission. The new types carry a 33 millimeter gun as well as a machine gun on the same ball mount. It has a crew of two, a driver and a gunner. Its weight is seven and a half tons and its speed is a maximum of thirty miles an hour. Tanks used in the war dashed about with a top speed of about seven miles an hour. The new model has a motor of 105 horsepower.

Among the battalions taking part in the experiments are: First Signal company, Fort Monmouth, N. J.; company C, First Engineers, Fort Humphries, Va.; Battery B, Sixty-first Coast Artillery, (antiaircraft), Fort Monroe, Va.; Provisional platoon, First Armored Car troop, Fort Meyer, Va.

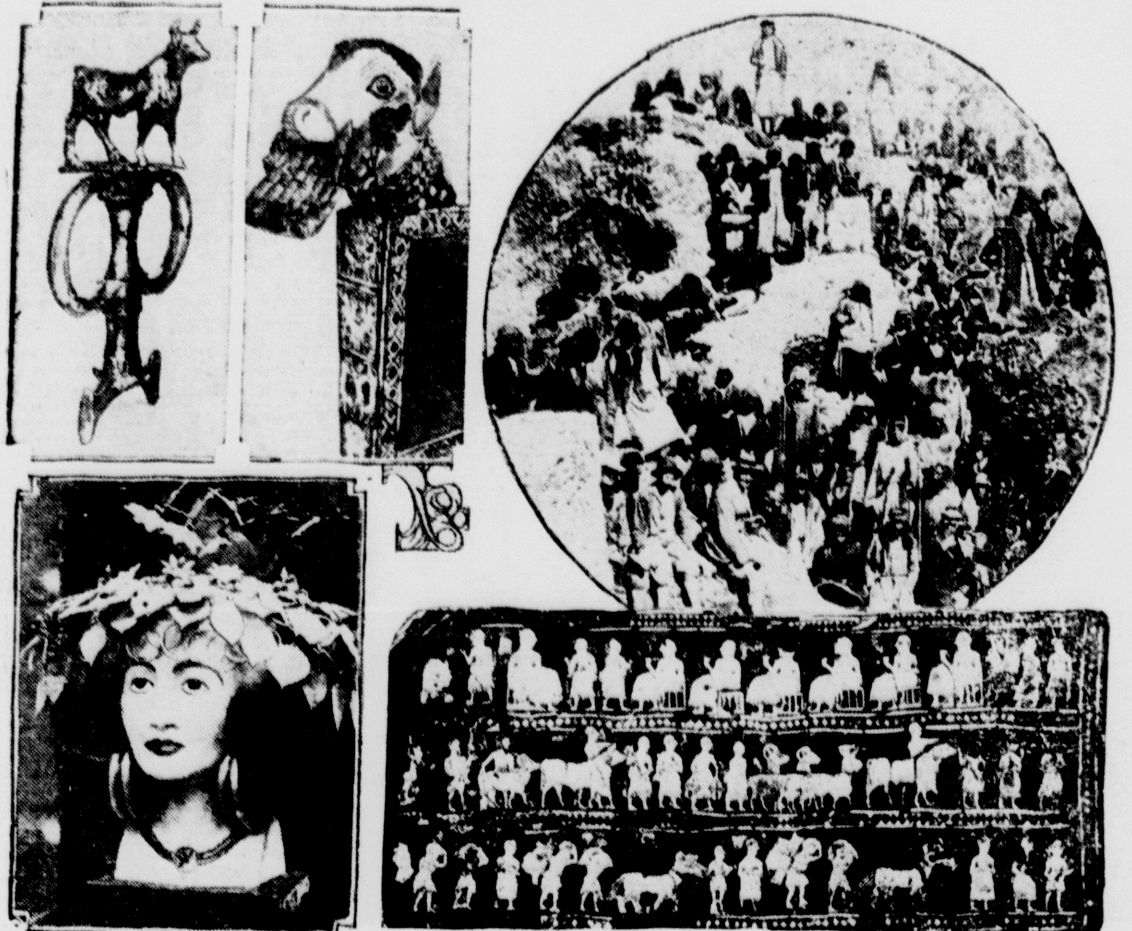

Old Dominion, however, is more fortunate than its long-eared cousin. They will be used as mounts for the cavalry during the sham battles while other branches of the service will use armored cars.

Loading and unloading of personnel and material by day and night is a feature on the program the mechanized force is noted for speed in movement.

Church, Berkshire, England, recently transmitting rooms of the broadcasting stations at Eiffel Tower, Paris, and of Warsaw, have been placed under the ground.

Of 1,002 cases admitted to the King Edward Maternity hospital, at Perth, Australia, last year, only 12 were fatal.

Excavate Tombs 5,000 Years Old

How the ancient peoples of Ur and Chaldea lived and loved and fought 5,000 years ago were revealed by the University of Pennsylvania Museum expedition headed by Prof. C. Leonard Woolley, shown with Mrs. Woolley in the foreground of the picture at upper right, which includes the native excavators. The two photos at upper left show a silver rein-ring from a royal wagon and the sounding box of a harp inlaid with gold and lapis lazuli. Below is a statue of Queen Shub Ad, whose hairdress is curiously modern despite the barbaric ear trinkets; and, right, the Mosaic "standard of the kings of Ur," which depicts the army of the Sumerians and the king and royal family at a feast. The bottom picture shows the head of a bull, the workmanship being thin gold over wood. The beard indicates the statue was a religious symbol.

Andy O'Brosky Leads City League Swatters In First Half

Hammers Ball for .581 Figure in 15 Contests

Ty Connors, Chester, and Pete Dustman, Wells-ville, Finish at .500 Mark; Plenty in .400 Division, Too.

After an inauspicious start at the outset of the season, during which he trapped the horeshead in spells, Andy O'Brosky, outfielder and pitcher for the K. T. K. club, found his batting eye about the middle of the first half and wound up in a clouting spree that earned him the title of king of City Industrial league swatters for the opening section of the split-season.

O'Brosky breezed in with an average of .581 for his batting performances in 15 contests and in 81 percentage point better than the next high swatter, that is, considering those players who performed regularly.

It is a fact that one league hitter finished with the perfect average of 1.000 for the first half of the season. His name is Fowler and he, too, is a member of the K. T. K. club. Fowler got into only two games in substitute capacity and was at bat once. It chanced he got a hit in that solitary trip to the plate.

Six league swatters finished in the Open 25-Day Racing Meet At Cleveland

Inaugural Handicap Featured at Bainbridge Park.

CLEVELAND, July 28.—The inaugural handicap, purse $2,500, was to feature today's opening card of a scheduled 25-day running race meet at Bainbridge park, newly completed track on the Cuyahoga-Geauga county line, near here. Included among horses entered in the feature, fifth event on the program, were Florence Mills and Phlarity of the O. Viau stable; Cameo and Shasta Kold of the B. Creech stable; Bi, Bill Thompson, Prince Bulbo, Grand King, Sunny Saint and Leyland.

Several scratches were predicted on the seven-race card as torrential rains during the night turned the track muddy.

Opening of the Bainbridge course was to mark the first running race program in the Cleveland district within two years. On August 11, the "Ohio derby," scheduled at the track, is expected to bring together some of the country's best racers in competition for a $12,500 purse. Jack Higgins, which won the last Louisiana derby, already is on the ground.

LEAGUE LEADERS

Highest average—Andy O'Brosky, K. T. K.—.581.

Sacrifice hits—Digman, Laughlin; Lintner, Wellsville; Rager, Wellsville; Aufderheide, Turk Nash—six each.

Runs—C. Wagner and Adamson, Wellsville—20 each.
Most hits—G. Wagner and C. Wagner, Wellsville—25 each.

were in one game each, Wyant two. The .400 division is more densely populated. Ten can claim ranking above this figure: Shultz, Madison Billards; Digman, Laughlin; Curly Evans, Laughlin; George and Cal Wagner, Wellsville; Eddie Bayley, Turk Nash; Ranaldi, Laughlin; Jack O'Brosky, K. T. K.; Deshier, Turk Nash, and Bill Mundy of Turk Nash.

Mundy played in but one game and Curly Evans five. Up until the last couple of weeks of the first half, George Wagner of Wellsville had batting honors pretty well sewed up but in the hectic contests that were staged to determine the championship his batting average went skidding and wound up at the .453 mark, which, however, is not to be sneezed at.

As a result of his swatting efforts in the first half, O'Brosky holds the inside track in the contest for the watch hung up by Leon Rubin, local jeweler, as a prize for the leading hitter of the league for the season.

But, judging from the number of sluggers who are cracking the ball any place from 350 to 500 he'll have to do a lot of hitting yet to stay out in front.

Although introduced several years ago, bookkeeping machines are just being generally accepted in Chile.

40,000 Persons Expected To Attend Opening Of Olympiad

Newell Downs Madison; Turk Nash is Defeated

Homer Laughlin Nine, With Six Consecutive Wins, Goes Into Lead in City Industrial League Race.

MEETING their first downfall of the second half, Turk Nash and his clubbers last night bowed to Wellsville, 2 to 1, in a hard fought contest at Nicholson field before a large crowd.

Both team scored in the fourth inning and the victors added the winning counter in the sixth.

Turk Nash's drive in the fourth was launched after Desherer had grounded out. Alf Bayley singled over second and was forced on Watson's roller, Reese to Talbott. Watson, however, stole second and scored on Aufderheide's timely single to right.

Wellsville evened the count in the last half of the same frame. Rager led off with a walk, stole second, went to third on a passed ball. C. Wagner drew a walk and swiped second. On Talbott's single to right, Rager reached the plate but Wagner, attempting to get to the same place, was thrown out, Christy to Desherer to Hunselman. Edwards fanned and Reese fouled out.

George Wagner started the Wellsville club on its way in the sixth to another run, which proved sufficient to win, by doubling over the right field fence. Rager was thrown out, Sayre to Desherer, Wagner reaching third. When Cal Wagner's fly dropped back of second between Sayre and McMath G. Wagner crossed the plate.

Work of Desherer and Rager featured on the defense, while Talbott, with a brace of singles, led the hitters. Aufderheide and Hunselman were robbed of almost certain hits by bullet like throws of Cal Wagner in right field.

Discus Nearly Cost Goslin Baseball Job

Hereafter He'll Confine His Activities to Diamond.

HURLING the discus may be all right for some of these youthful athletes who have a desire to distinguish themselves over at Amsterdam during the Olympics, but it isn't such good exercise for a fellow who is pretty well along in years and is more interested in distinguishing himself on the baseball field than in becoming an Olympic idol.

In fact Goose Goslin, the heavy slugging outfielder of the Washington Senators, has about decided to give up discus hurling entirely and not even bow if he should meet one all dressed up right out on the hotel corner.

Of course there was a time when Goose really looked fittingly at a discus. Speaking quite frankly, Goose even landed one of the things and tossed it about a bit in more of an amateurish manner.

But Goose discovered that a discus is nothing more or less than a tickle saucer. After he'd been good enough to play around with it during the training period down South, what happened? He woke up to find that his right arm was almost no use to him and a right arm is especially necessary to the business of outfielding and that is what the Washington Senators were paying him a salary to do.

Discovering that the discus had played him a dirty trick, Goslin started to train up his left wing so that he could continue as an outfielder and be able to toss the apple in from the outer garden without running into the infield before he made his throw. He finally got to a point where he could get distance in his left-hand pegs, but the direction was something about which he was still doubtful.

He worked a few games for the Senators but he was out of the lineup as much as he was in it—and all due to his ambition to be a playmate of a mere discus. Eventually he went to see a bone-setter in Battle Creek.

All that had happened to Goslin was that back in his discus hurling days he had yanked his collar bone out of place. This had caused soreness across his ribs and tied up the muscles of his right arm above and below the back of his shoulder. The dislocation had prevented the arm from rotating properly in its socket. Nothing much but certainly enough to make a first-class outfielder shy far away every time he sees a discus.

He was advised to nurse the old wing along, and the knowledge that he would soon be as good as new has put new life into the well-known fence-buster. In fact, Goslin has gone into the battle with renewed vigor and has been socking the apple with such regularity that he has taken his place with the heavy hitters of the American League, and it wouldn't be at all surprising to see him finish up the season among the top-notchers.

Goslin always hits well and usually finishes well over the .300 notch, but this year it was feared that his little affair with the discus might toss him off his stride, and an outfielder who can't throw accurately and who can't hit isn't of much value to a major league ball club.

But, Goose seems to have fully recovered from his efforts to become a noted discus tosser, and in the future will devote all his time to playing around with the horse-hide covered implement of his own trade.

The heavy clouting Senator probably agrees that there's a lot of truth to that thing about "teaching old dogs new tricks."

SPORT OF KINGS ON FAIR PROGRAM

The "Sport of Kings" will again be the racing attraction at the West Virginia State Fair, Wheeling, September 1st to 8th, according to Mrs. Bert H. Swartz, secretary, who states that an elaborate card of the thrilling sport has been programmed.

The meet will again be a seven-day affair, opening on Saturday, September 1st, and closing the following Saturday, running throughout Labor day week. Eight races are carded for each Saturday, Labor Day and Thursday, and seven races for each of the other three days.

Reservations of stalls now being made indicate there will be plenty of racing material, between three and four hundred horses being expected to compete.

Jos. M. McGraw, of Washington, Pa., prominent racing official and judge, will have charge of the racing as superintendent of the speed department of the fair.

Throughout racing is very popular in Wheeling, and fans are looking forward with relish to the speed festival at the fair.

Bantam is Seeking Battles

Andy Tomasky Joins Byron Foutts' Stable.

BYRON FOUTTS, Midland, now managing Frankie Porto, of Glassport, Pa., has added another pug to his fistic stable, one Andy Tomasky, 116-18 pounder, who has done plenty of boxing in other places besides the "sticks."

Tomasky has boxed principally around the east but has hooked up with Foutts in anticipation of obtaining work in the Pennsylvania-Ohio district.

He was back Wednesday from the camp of Tom Heeney, who lost by a technical knockout to Heavyweight Champion Gene Tunney Thursday night. Tomasky worked out in several sessions with Heeney, as the Anzac endeavored to develop some speed.

Tomasky has had a brush with Bushy Graham, earning a draw in six rounds of fighting in a benefit for New York crippled children and is pulling wires for another tilt with Graham the latter part of the summer.

Tomasky sports a tin ear on the left side and this, ironically enough, was not obtained in boxing. According to Tomasky, himself, the cauliflower blossomed as a result of an injury sustained in a baseball game with a number of other pugilists in the east a number of years ago. The boxers, holding a general jollification outing, were indulging in the diamond pastime, with Tomasky catching. Pancho Villa was pitching and Sid Terris, on second, started for third. Tomasky stepped out too quickly for the pitcher and was banged on the ear with the bat.

Tomasky will be gratified that this is published. He says he's growing weary explaining that he does not "catch" them on the ear in the ring. And, looking the lad over in trim, tip top shape, one can believe he doesn't.

RAY MITCHELL, East Liverpool lightweight, became intimately acquainted with the canvas on the ring at Idora park, Youngstown, Wednesday night in one of the six-round preliminaries to the Harry Matrone-Dick Evans fight.

Meeting Johnny Kusie, Mitchell took the count in the fourth round. Kusie had his man on the floor four

45 Nations' In Meet of Athletes

AMSTERDAM, July 28.—A crowd of 40,000 persons was expected to attend the opening ceremony of the ninth revival of the Olympic games here today.

Every seat for the opening had been sold. Although the parade of athletes of 45 nations which will mark the opening of the games was not scheduled to take place until this afternoon, many spectators were on hand at noon.

The arrival of the prince consort of Holland at the royal box in the Olympic stadium will be the signal for the start of the opening ceremony. Queen Wilhelmina will not attend because of Calvinistic opposition to the games being held on Sunday.

More than 3,000 of the finest athletes in the world, clad in sporting togs, will take part in the opening parade. Following the parade, Dr. J. T. De Erase, former minister of arts and public instruction, will make the consecration speech. Then Prince Henry, in the name of Queen Wilhelmina, will proclaim the opening of the games, following which 45 pigeons, each carrying the colors of one of the competing nations, will be released. After that there will be songs and music, the entire proceedings taking about three hours.

Clarence "Bud" Houser, shot and discus star and double winner in the 1924 Olympics, will lead the American athletes in the parade. Johnny Weissmuller, American's crack swimmer, who also won two events in the 1924 games, will carry the American standard.

The opening track event of the games, the 400-meter hurdles, is scheduled for tomorrow. Head coach Lawson Robertson is confident that America will be victorious in six track field events, the 400-meter run, the 400-meter hurdles, the 1,600-meter relay, the broad jump, high jump and pole vault.

The case of Charley Faddock was sidetracked by the International Amateur Athletic Federation yesterday. All questions dealing with amateur status were adjourned until August 6, the day after the completion of the games.

Besides being certain of annexing most of the track and field events, American leader expect to have things their own way in swimming, rowing and boxing competitions.

The stadium track was in a deplorable condition early today because of a terrific rain yesterday, which prevented the athletes from working out.

times before Mitchell's seconds tossed in the towel.

Kusie appeared in several bouts in the F. O. E. ring here last winter but during these sessions did not exhibit much of a K. O. punch. In Wednesday's fight, ringsiders agreed Kusie displayed vast improvement in every phase of his fighting. His punishing left and smashing right crosses were Mitchell down while a left to the wind doubled up the local boy for the count.

ROBERT M. LERMAN, manager of Monte Sirko, McKeesport, disputes Manager Byron Foutts' claim of a decision victory for his boy, Frankie Porto, over the said Sirko.

While admitting that Porto received the decision over Sirko in McKeesport, Lerman contends that the crowd did not like it.

Incidentally, Lerman says "Sirko is ready to meet Porto on a winner-take-all basis; that is, provided some promoter can induce Porto in the same ring with Sirko."

Lerman asserts he has three good bouts lined up for Sirko the coming month and after these he will be ready to take on Foutts' protege.

Mystery at Styles

A Mystery Serial That Defies Solution

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

"Started the moment I got the wire. Just come off night duty. Hired car. Quickest way to get home."

"Have you had anything to eat this morning, Evie?" asked John.

"No."

"I thought not. Come along, breakfast's not cleared away yet, and they'll make you some fresh tea." He turned to me. "Look after her, Hastings, will you? Walls is waiting for me. Oh, here's Monsieur Poirot. He's helping us, you know, Evie."

Miss Howard shook hands with Poirot, but glanced suspiciously over her shoulder at John.

"What do you mean—helping us?"

"Helping us to investigate."

"Nothing to investigate. Have they taken him to prison yet?"

"Taken who to prison?"

"Who? Alfred Inglethorp, of course!"

"My dear Evie, do be careful. Lawrence is of the opinion that my mother died from heart seizure."

"More fool, Lawrence!" retorted Miss Howard. "Of course Alfred Inglethorp murdered poor Emily—as I always said you would."

"My dear Evie, don't shout so. Whatever we may think or suspect, it is better to say as little as possible for the present. The inquest isn't until Friday."

"Not until Friday!" The snort Miss Howard gave was truly magnificent. "You're all off your heads. The man will be out of the country by then. If he's any sense, he won't stay here tamely and wait to be hanged."

John Cavendish looked at her helplessly.

"I know what it is," she accused him, "you're listening to the doctors. Never should. What do they know? Nothing at all—or just enough to make them dangerous. I ought to know—my own father was a doctor. That little Wilkins is about the greatest fool that even I have ever seen. Heart seizure! Sort of thing he would say."

"Anyone with any sense could see at once that her husband had poisoned her. I always said he'd murder her in her bed, poor soul. Now he's done it. And all you can do is to murmur silly things about 'heart seizure' and 'inquest on Friday.' You ought to be ashamed of yourself, John Cavendish."

"What do you want me to do?" asked John, unable to help a faint smile. "Dash it all, Evie. I can't haul him down to the local police station by the scruff of his neck."

"Well, you might do something. Find out how he did it. He's a crafty beggar. Dare say he soaked fly papers. Ask Cook if she's missed any."

It occurred to me very forcibly at that moment that to harbour Miss Howard and Alfred Inglethorp under the same roof, and keep the peace between them, was likely to prove a Herculean task, and I did not envy John. I could see by the expression of his face that he fully appreciated the difficulty of the position. For the moment, he sought refuge in retreat, and left the room precipitately.

Dorcas brought in fresh tea. As she left the room, Poirot came over from the window where he had been standing, and sat down facing Miss Howard.

"Mademoiselle," he said gravely, "I want to ask you something."

"Ask away," said the lady, eyeing him with some disfavour.

"I want to be able to count upon your help."

"I'll help you to hang Alfred with pleasure," she replied gruffly. "Hanging's too good for him. Ought to be drawn and quartered, like in good old times."

"We are at one then," said Poirot, "for I, too, want to hang the criminal."

"Alfred Inglethorp?"

"Him, or another."

"No question of another. Poor Emily was never murdered until he came along. I don't say she wasn't surrounded by sharks—she was. But it was only her purse they were after. Her life was safe enough. But along comes Mr. Alfred Inglethorp—and within two months—hey presto!"

"Believe me, Miss Howard," said Poirot very earnestly, "if Mr. Inglethorp is the man, he shall not escape me. On my honour, I will hang him as high as Haman!"

"That's better," said Miss Howard more enthusiastically.

"But I must ask you to trust me. Now your help may be very valuable to me. I will tell you why. Because in all this house of mourning, yours are the only eyes that have wept."

Miss Howard blinked, and a new note crept into the guifness of her voice.

"If you mean that I was fond of her—yes, I was. You know, Emily was a selfish old woman in her way. She was very generous, but she always wanted a return. She never let people forget what she had done for them—and that way, she missed love. Don't think she ever realized it, though, or felt the lack of it. Hope not, anyway."

"I was on a different footing. I took my stand from the first. 'So many pounds a year I'm worth to you. Well and good. But not a penny piece besides—not a pair of gloves, nor a theatre ticket.' She didn't understand—was very offended sometimes. Said I was foolishly proud. It wasn't that—but I couldn't explain. Anyway, I kept my self-respect. And so, out of the whole bunch, I was the only one who could allow myself to be fond of her. I watched over her. I guarded her from the lot of them. And then a glib-tongued scoundrel comes along, and pooh! all my years of devotion go for nothing."

Poirot nodded sympathetically.

"I understand, mademoiselle, I understand all you feel. It is most natural. You think that we are luke-warm—that we lack fire and energy—but trust me, it is not so."

John stuck his head in at this juncture, and invited us both to come up to Mrs. Inglethorp's room, as he and Mr. Wells had finished looking through the desk in the boudoir.

As we went up the stairs, John looked back to the dining-room door, and lowered his voice confidentially: "Look here, what's going to happen when these two meet?"

I shook my head helplessly.

"I've told Mary to keep them apart if she can."

"Will she be able to do so?"

"The Lord only knows. There's one thing, Inglethorp himself won't be too keen on meeting her."

"You've got the keys still, haven't you, Poirot?" I asked, as we reached the door of the locked room.

Taking the keys from Poirot John unlocked it, and we all passed in. The lawyer went straight to the desk, and John followed him.

"My mother kept most of her important papers in this despatch-case, I believe," he said.

Poirot drew out the small bunch of keys.

"Permit me. I locked it, out of precaution, this morning."

"But it's not locked now."

"Impossible!"

"See." And John lifted the lid as he spoke.

"Miles tonnerres!" cried Poirot, dumbfounded. "And I—who have both the keys in my pocket!" He flung himself upon the case. Suddenly he stiffened. "En voila une affaire! This lock has been forced!"

"What?"

Poirot laid down the case again.

"But who forced it? Why should they? When? But the door was locked?" These exclamations burst from us disjointedly.

Poirot answered them categorically—almost mechanically.

"Who? That is the question. Why? Ah, if I only knew. When? Since I was here an hour ago. As to the door being locked, it is a very ordinary lock. Probably any other of the doorkeys in this passage would fit it."

CHAPTER 14.

We stared at one another blankly. Poirot had walked over to the mantel-piece. He was outwardly calm, but I noticed his hands, which from long force of habit were mechanically straightening the spill vases on the mantel-piece, were shaking violently.

River Packet in Thrilling Race

Crowds cheered themselves hoarse, hats were thrown in the air and tugs tied their sirens down as two rival river packets, the Chris Greene, out of Cincinnati, and the Betsy Ann, whose home port is Pittsburgh, raced twenty miles from Cincinnati to New Richmond for the title of "queen of the Ohio." The Chris Greene (in the foreground) won the race, covering the distance in two hours and 25 minutes.

HOLIDAYS OF NEW WEDS SHOULD BE ENJOYED APART, SAYS SHAW

LONDON.—"People in the early stages of married life should take their holidays apart," says George Bernard Shaw commenting on a clergyman's statement that a husband "needs the sunshine of a little change."
"In fact, I think married people should get away from each other whenever they feel inclined. It saves so much friction."
"Married people, however, get out of the stage when they see too much of one another. Married life is not the same all through."
"After a time the partners do not feel that need for separation. When people have lived long enough together they do not want to take their vacations apart."
Mrs. Belloc Lowndes, the novelist, says: "I do not agree with the suggestion. Being old-fashioned, I think husband and wife should spend their holidays together. They ought to enjoy them that way."
"If they are not happy when at home, I do not see that it will help them merely to take their vacations apart."

CONGRESS WILL MAKE U. S. 'SAFE' FOR PROSPERITY

Senator Wesley Jones,
Washington, Offers Proposal.

BUILDING PLAN
Measure Will Get Preferred Status in Short Session.

WASHINGTON.—Congress will be confronted with the task of "making the country safe for prosperity" in its next session.

While similar proposals have been numerous in the past, they have lacked the powerful support necessary to place them in the forefront of legislation. Now, Senator Wesley Jones (R.) of Washington, the chairman of the senate commerce committee, has proposed action.

Jones' plan is based upon the idea that it is foolish for the government, whose credit is good at all times, to spend huge sums in internal improvements while the country is in a prosperous condition. He would create a huge reserve fund to be used when statistical information reveals a real lack in industry.

Expected Support.

Other members of congress who made similar suggestions, it is known, are hopeful of obtaining serious consideration of their measures.

The success of the present federal building program, which really got well under way at a time when many cities were catching up with their building needs in the post-war period, is believed to be responsible for an increasing sentiment for the plan.

With a bill already reported and on the senate calendar, Senator Jones believes that business of the short session will be so light that he can have the measure given preferred status.

"Industrial depressions seem to come and go in cycles," explained Senator Jones. "Why, we may not exactly know. Their prevention is most desirable and any action that will reward or prevent their recurrence will be beneficial to everybody and to every industry. One of the greatest evils from these depressions is unemployment.

"There are many governmental activities that can employ labor. If they can be so directed as to furnish increased employment when an industrial depression is threatened or is under way the result must be good.

Advance Planning.

"The principle of advance planning of public works so that expenditures may be made to influence in a good way employment conditions in the country has been accepted by all who have given it serious thought. Its application by the federal government will encourage municipal and state governments to apply it in their activities. The result locally will be good and far reaching."

Among the proposed federal appropriations, to be spent when contracts for construction work have fallen 10 per cent for a three-month period below the average of the corresponding three-month period, are $75,000,000 for good roads, $50,000,000 for rivers and harbor work, $15,000,000 for special public buildings.
